OHIO WOMAN RECOVERS AFTER STOMACH TORTURE

Mrs. Nora Britton is well known in Caldwell, O., where she has lived for some time. Her many friends, who know the suffering she has endured from stomach trouble, are marveling at the sudden and astonishing improvement in her condition.

Mrs. Britton credits her good fortune to a trial of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, and describes her experience as follows:

"For four years I suffered, no one knows what. I had six doctors but received no benefit. One said it was cancer of the stomach, another recommended an operation. I had given up all hope when I saw an advertisement of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and decided to try it. Thank God, relief came at last. I can't say enough for it. I am pleased and thankful. I am recommending it to every person I meet, suffering with this ailment."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

WASHINGTON NOTES

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 25.—There will be no booming of cannon to thrill the old soldiers of the town of Weston on Decoration day. Leastways, if there is, it will be because they will be able to procure a cannon from somebody else except their Uncle Sam. The old fellow hasn't a cannon to loan them, a fact he has much regret, but he hasn't just the same. He sadly writes to the Grand Army of the Republic post at Weston through the congressman of the First district, that he would be only too glad to accommodate the boys of '61 who defended him, but he is unable to do it. Just at the present critical moment in the world's affairs, Uncle Sam is not loaning his cannon for ornamental and ceremonial affairs. He is treasuring them for a more grim purpose, and hoping in his kindly, peace loving old heart that he will not be called on to use them soon or ever.

Tacoma park, a suburb of Washington, the headquarters of the Seventh Day Adventists, has been the scene of an important business conference of the dignitaries of that denomination, at which the West Virginia branch was represented by a

HELPLESS AS BABY

Down in Mind Unable to Work, and What Helped Her.

Summit Point, W. Va.—Mrs. Anna Belle Emey, of this place, says: "I suffered for 15 years with an awful pain in my right side, caused from womanly trouble, and doctored lots for it, but without success. I suffered so very much, that I became down in mind, and as helpless as a baby. I was in the worst kind of shape. Was unable to do any work."

I began taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, and got relief from the very first dose. By the time I had taken 12 bottles, my health was completely restored. I am now 48 years years old, but feel as good as I did when only 16.

Cardui certainly saved me from losing my mind, and I feel it my duty to speak in its favor. I wish I had some power over poor, suffering women, and could make them know the good it would do them."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, it will certainly be worth your while to give Cardui a trial. It has been helping weak women for more than 50 years, and will help you, too.

Try Cardui. Your druggist sells it.

RIGA IS A CITY OF MERCHANT PRINCES

Similar in Business Life to New York City and Hamburg City.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Riga, the most ultra-western town in the whole Muscovite empire, a city of merchant princes, of bustling warehouses and miles of crowded dockings, of various modern architecture and cosmopolitan organization, with a hurrying, tense business life that finds its counterpart in New York and Hamburg, lies near the head of the Gulf of Riga, a few miles north-east of Mitau, or just back of the struggling Russo-German lines in the Baltic provinces. Riga is a great commercial city. It stands third among Russia's seaports, and second among all the ports upon the Baltic sea, where commercial cities have been growing and building for centuries. The city is 265 miles south-west of Petrograd, and is filled with the spirit of modern business. It is a main gateway into vast Russian hinterlands, and is probably the most up-to-date city to be found from Vladivostok to Libau.

So begins the National Geographic Society's description of the great Russian city that has sprung into prominence with the most recent German campaign, whose direction lies through the Baltic provinces. The war primer continues:

"Second only to Petrograd in population and industry, German merchants of the thirteenth century laid the foundations of its commercial renown. It was founded in 1201, and many German colonists soon found their way to the new city, attracted thither by the many commercial privileges granted by its flourishing member of the Hanseatic League, the great merchant trust of the Middle Ages. With Hamburg, Bremen, Lubeck, Stralsund and scores of its fellow-banded cities, Riga grew in wealth and power, and its merchants found in its harbor a world of trade and commerce. Before the world ran in and out of its river harbor, and it enjoyed the proud development of a German 'free city.'"

"Near the middle of the sixteenth century, Riga passed into the power of the King of Poland. The headlong Gustavus Adolphus, of Sweden, brought it in his course of conquest with a shock before its walls in 1601, and only after a long hard siege, was able to take the city. Riga passed to the control of the Russians in 1710, and has since played an important part in the development of the mighty northern empire."

"Riga has the appearance of a German port. The older part of the port looks like a medieval German town, while new Riga might be Bremen. It has none of the happy-go-lucky Slavonic air about it, and so far the tourist, it is disappointing. Before the war, German was the language of its business and German was the idiom of its streets and homes. Official Riga was Russian, and as Riga is the seat of the governor-general of the Baltic provinces this official element was of much importance."

"For the most part, Riga is a very modern city. Its older buildings have been torn down to make way for structures more up-to-date, more suited to the prosperity of a business city. It is situated on the Dvina river, for miles above the mouth of the Gulf of Riga, and it is bound to the Baltic by canals. Riga has princes of finance and trade, and they have lined many of its avenues with modern villas and palaces. As an example of the city's growth, it may be mentioned that Riga erected more than fifteen hundred new business and apartment buildings during a recent year and that most of these buildings were equipped with elevators, open plumbing, vacuum cleaning, central refrigerating and steam heating plants."

"A large and varied industry has grown up in the port city. Machinery, railway cars, lumber, leather, tiles, glass, tobacco and other products are turned out in its numerous factories. The annual value of the articles manufactured in Riga exceeds $30,000,000. As an industrial center, it has been becoming more and more prominent year by year, and its future seems to be one of an almost unlimited promise."

"The average value of Riga's exports is well over $35,000,000. Its imports total about $30,000,000 each year. The exports include cereals, flax, flaxseed, eggs, lumber and butter. Its chief imports are machinery, cotton, coal and groceries. It has a thrifty, well-to-do population of more than 300,000."

USING SOAP SPOILS THE HAIR

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulified coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless) is cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulified coconut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.
